Entering the UAE

After proven partnerships with clients such as the NHS and the University of Warwick, Hexitime feels confident to broaden its horizons into the UAE market. Hexitime's growing platform of 4,500 users has made it a platform worth recognition and believes that it can offer UAE businesses an opportunity to enhance collaboration and efficiencies within their organisations. Although Hexitime is designed to be compatible with businesses from all backgrounds, Hexitime will prioritise integrating itself into the health and educational sectors.

Moving into the UAE is an excellent move for Hexitime due to synergies it has with the region. There is a huge drive in the UAE for workforce innovation and growth through increasing efficiencies. 'Hexitime enables organisations to find hidden expertise within their workforce, bringing employees together to solve problems and innovate. Whether you're looking to improve retention, increase productivity, or enhance profitability, Hexitime's unique time banking system gives your employees the tools they need to drive your business forward' said the cofounder and former NHS director, John Lodge.
